

How to find the application form

1. Please start by going to our web page: <http://phd.arts.au.dk/applicants/open-and-specific-calls/>
2. Choose the call you are interested in and click on the link called Call incl. link to the application facility.

The screenshot shows the Aarhus University Graduate School website. The top navigation bar includes the university logo, "AU PhD-portal", and dropdown menus for "For master's students" and "For employees". A search bar is located on the right. Below the navigation bar, the page title is "Graduate School - Faculty of Arts". A secondary navigation bar contains links for "Applicants", "PhD Students", "Academic staff", "PhD courses", "Financing", "Rules and forms", and "About us".

The main content area is titled "Calls for PhD scholarships (4+4) and PhD fellowships (5+3)". It features a left sidebar with a menu under "Applicants", where "Open and Specific Calls" is highlighted with a red box. The main content includes a sub-header "Deadline, Reply and Enrolment start" and a note: "Read the application guideline and the FAQ thoroughly before you fill out the application form!". A bold statement reads: "We strongly urge you to submit your application in good time before the deadline expires." Below this is a list of links, with "Open call" and "Specific calls" highlighted by red boxes. Other links include "Meetings for potential PhD students", "Mandatory attachments", "English language requirements (mandatory)", "Assessment of non-Danish qualifications", "What is the difference between having a Master's degree and still being enrolled as a Master's student when applying for a PhD scholarship?", and "External calls/funding".

On the right side, there is a section titled "How to fill out the PhD application form" with a plus icon, and "Guideline and FAQ" with a minus icon. The "Guideline and FAQ" section includes "Questions about the application facility" with a note to read the Guidelines for electronic application and the page Questions and answers before contacting the graduate school. Below this are several expandable sections with plus icons: "Before and after deadline", "iPad and similar hardware", "Credit transfer must be 0 or a positive integer", and "If there are no particular expenses, please just enter 0".

3. Read the call.
4. In the bottom of the call you will find the link for the application facility.
5. Click on the link called Aarhus University's web-based facility:
